

Auburn University's 4th War Eagle American Indian Festival

Celebrate the history and culture of South Eastern Indigenous Peoples with living history campsites, musicians, dancers, artisans, food, & crafts

Friday, November 11 & Saturday, November 12, 2005

Grounds of Auburn University's Jule Collins Smith

Museum of Fine Art

Sunday, November 13, 2005

Auburn University RBD Library

Schedule available from link on www.auburn.edu/

Host Drum: White Horse Singers

Guest Drum: Red Eagle

Emcee: Faron Weeks

Arena Director: Larry Woods

University Sponsors: Office of Diversity and Multicultural Affairs and Center for Diversity and Race Relations

The Auburn University Diversity Leadership Council defines diversity as "the co-existence of people, processes and functions, characterized by both differences and similarities." Auburn University, nationally recognized as a dynamic academic institution, attracts and develops students, staff, faculty and administrators representing multiple dimensions of diversity. It is a fair and equitable culture in which the talents of every member of the Auburn University community reinforce its values and contribute to achieving its mission.

Persons needing special accommodations are requested to contact the Center for Diversity and Race Relations at 844 2976 or www.auburn.edu/cdrr.

AUBURN UNIVERSITY

AN AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER AND EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION